

PHYSICAL DEMANDS OF TRAVEL

Travel in Italy requires a certain level physical activity! Walking is an essential part of sightseeing in the ancient cities and hamlets of Italy. Our tours require travelers to be on their feet, to walk over cobblestone and uneven streets, to climb some stairs and to stand, and do a combination of these activities for up to three hours, indoors and outdoors, in all weather conditions. We do our best to provide as much assistance as possible, but our tours are not recommended for anyone with walkers, wheelchairs or mobility issues.
